About the Courage
of Glenn Cunningham

A rural schoolhouse is burning on the Kansas prairie. Little children are caught in the fierce fire. Glenn Cunningham's brother is burned to death. Glenn is cruelly burned about the legs. No one expects the little farm boy to live.

He does live—almost as by a miracle—but there is little hope he will ever walk again.

But courageous little Glenn does walk! He makes himself walk—and run! As soon as he can, he forces himself into a stumbling run—as he goes about his chores—on his way to school. Determinedly he builds up strength in those almost useless legs.

Years go by—we are at Princeton in June, 1934. It's the mile race—a gruelling test—a killing grind that few men can stand... Who's the winner? It's Glenn Cunningham of the fire-scarred legs and the matchless courage! Time: 4 minutes, 6.8 seconds—a new world record!

Few milers have ever beaten Cunningham—the world's greatest miler. None has ever matched his handicap of fire-scarred muscles. CUNNINGHAM NOW LIVES IN NEW YORK CITY.

21 THE CLOCK CALLS THE HOME OF JUDGE JUSTIN WRIGHT AND HAS SOME DIFFICULTY IN CONNECTING WITH THE HONEST JURIST UNTIL-----

--THEN TELL HIM THAT ONE OF HIS FELLOW MEMBERS OF THE GOWN AND GAVEL WISHES TO SPEAK TO HIM--

OH!-- I'M SORRY, SIR-- VERY WELL, SIR--

22 THE JUDGE TAKES THE CALL IN HIS STUDY-----

WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY USING THAT RUSE TO BRING ME TO THE PHONE ---WHO ARE YOU?

I'M THE CLOCK-- AND SO THAT YOU WON'T THINK THIS A TRICK OF MARCON'S, JUST REMEMBER THIS---WHEN HE WAS SENTENCED THERE WAS NO SUCH CHARACTER AS THE CLOCK, THEREFORE HE WOULDN'T KNOW ME-- JUDGE I'M TRYING TO HELP YOU ----

23 YOU KNOW AS WELL AS I THAT 'VELVET' MARCON SHOULD BE BEHIND THE BARS AGAIN, BECAUSE HIS THREAT TO YOU PROVES THAT HE DOES NOT INTEND TO GO STRAIGHT---AND THEREFORE MUST BE CAPTURED AND SENT AWAY---

IT ALL SOUNDS VERY INTERESTING--

24 --BUT HOW DO YOU EXPECT TO FIND HIM-- IF YOU READ THE PAPERS YOU MUST KNOW HOW COMPLETELY HE HAS ESCAPED THE DRAG-NET SET FOR HIM!

I UNDERSTAND THAT AND I'VE HIT ON A PLAN, BUT TO CARRY IT OUT I NEED YOUR UTMOST COOPERATION--

25 WHAT IS IT THAT YOU INTEND TO DO?

WHAT!-

26 YES, -- YOU ARE TO GIVE OUT TO THE PRESS, THE STORY, THAT YOU HAVE COME TO THE CONCLUSION THAT MARCON'S THREAT WAS A BLUFF AND THAT YOU HAVE CALLED OFF THE POLICE GUARD AND YOU ARE GOING TO YOUR COUNTRY PLACE, ALONE, FOR A FEW DAYS TO REST UP --- WOULD YOU CARE TO RISK YOUR LIFE TO AID THE PUBLIC RID ITSELF OF THIS CROOK, JUDGE WRIGHT?

PIRATES AHOY!..... By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

The Pirate Hero of France

IN the town of St. Malo, France, there is a great statue that is much revered by the people. It stands in the public square, dominating traffic that rattles through the narrow streets to and from the waterfront.

The statue was erected only five years ago, but the town had been planning for this monument for at least a hundred years. The heroic figure on the pedestal is that of Jean Bart, most noted of the French corsairs.

In the middle of the Eighteenth century the name of Jean Bart was known throughout the maritime world and was feared by most of those who went to sea. Outside of France, he was known as a pirate. To the French he was known then, as he is known now, as a corsair and a national hero.

The difference between a corsair and a pirate is that the corsair is your fellow countryman and the pirate may be anybody's man.

Jean Bart began his piratical career by stealing from the slavers. He organized a system of capturing slave vessels as they left the coast of Africa, throwing overboard the crew and sailing the vessel to the market ports. Thus he saved the expense involved in capturing the slaves and his profits were so much greater that the owners who sent him out were much pleased with their share of the dividends.

It was only a step from this to throwing overboard the owners and shareholders in his company. Bart decided that it was not necessary to divide up with anybody on land who took no risks except financial ones.

There came a voyage upon which Captain Bart refused to touch land on the African coast. He stood off the harbor of Sierra Leone, whence issued the English slavers, bound for western markets. He pounced upon the first big ship, and in an hour had transferred the shackles from some of the slaves to the officers of the vessel. By nightfall he had transhipped the human cargo from the English vessel to his own handsome ship, La France. He then set fire to the empty English slaver, and made all sail for San Domingo.

On that trip Jean Bart made a fair sized fortune. It was a quick voyage, and the overhead was cut down to a minimum by various interesting devices. For instance, Bart, being short-handed, took a dozen of the English sailors. He also put some of the black captives to work. When La France was near the end of her voyage, the good Captain Bart had the Englishmen thrown overboard and the black men clapped into irons again.

The pirate slaver undersold all competitors in the San Domingo market, thus he was able to get away on another voyage quickly, without the delays incident to quibbling over prices. Presently he was back again, with another load of Africans. Again he undersold his competitors, for he had stolen his human merchandise from English slavers.

This business went on. Jean Bart became notorious throughout the seafaring world. Honest slavers were in terror of his ruthless program. The English slave merchants formed an association to protect themselves and their commerce against Jean Bart. They armed their ships. They concentrated their African wholesale markets at Sierra Leone. This harbor they fortified, and they kept a lookout at all times for the hated Frenchman. Slave ships sailed under convoy.

All of these precautions seemed to worry Jean Bart not a whit. He out-gunned, out-fought, and out-maneuvered his foes. When he met four slave ships, sailing together for protection, he took them all.

Transferring the cargo of one to his own ship, he placed the superfluous English officers and sailors aboard the vessel thus lightened, set fire to her, and sailed away with his own vessel and the three prizes. At the end of that trip Jean Bart delivered four shiploads of slaves to his broker in San Domingo, instead of the customary single shipload.

Captain Jean Bart was getting rich out of his innovation in piracy.

Bart established African headquarters and a terminal port for the African end of his voyages at the island of Fernando Po. A frigate, flying the King's flag, was scouring the African coast for the obnoxious French pirate. Bart managed to elude the frigate. His hiding place at Fernando Po was not discovered by the English until many years later.

When Bart heard the British man-of-war was seeking him, he increased the ferocity of his conduct toward English officers and crews. He had them all murdered outright, immediately upon cap-other measure of economy and efficiency. He took the cargoes into port in San Domingo in the English vessels, making a little extra money on the sale of the ship each time.

The King's frigate had gone to Halifax on business. Jean Bart heard the good news when he put in at Fernando Po after a very successful voyage to the West Indies. He determined to teach his English foes a lesson they would never forget.

La France reached the harbor of Sierra Leone in the middle of a moonless night. There were seven ships in the harbor, each flying the British flag. Five or six of these English vessels had their cargoes of merchandise, from Europe, still aboard, awaiting daylight for unloading.

Captain Bart launched seven boats. One boatload of pirates was assigned to each of the seven English ships. Captain Bart himself took command of the long-boat, and directed it to attack the biggest of the ships at anchor. This ship was commanded by a certain Captain Richardson, late of His Majesty's Navy, and who was in command of the naval situation at Sierra Leone during the absence of the frigate.

The seven boats glided noiselessly, with muffled oars, each to its assigned victim.

Captain Richardson took command of the fight in person. Every time the pirates scaled the side of the ship, they were met by a stubborn defence. Half the boarders had been killed in the determined assaults they had been making under the commands of the raging Captain Bart.

Finally the pirates gained the deck. There was a fight to the death in the waist of the ship. Captain Richardson, standing on the quarterdeck, took charge of a small swivel gun, and was preparing to fire it into the ranks of the onrushing pirates, when Jean Bart, overlooking the battle from the top of the deckhouse, took in the situation.

Jean Bart had one accomplishment that he had mastered with much practice. He knew how to throw a heavy knife straight to its mark. He always carried five or six such knives on his person, when there was a chance for combat.

As Captain Richardson reached his slow-match toward the touch-hole of his swivel gun, the pirate hurled his knife.

Captain Richardson fell across the gun, Bart's knife deep in his heart.

Jean Bart was master of the harbor and town of Sierra Leone. And such mastery! Not an Englishman afloat or ashore, was left alive. The little town was sacked. Every building in it was burned to the ground. Every inhabitant, without regard to age or sex, was put to death. Every ship in the harbor was sunk. The guns that could not be used aboard La France were dumped into the sea. Much loot was landed from captured shipping.

The town, harbor, and settlement of Sierra Leone passed entirely out of existence within the space of thirty-six hours.

"I believe I have taught them a lesson!" said victorious Captain Bart, as he sailed away in search of loaded slavers.

ture of their vessels. He had heard that one of the English ships that he had set afire had been saved by the heroic work of the men he had intended to burn with her, and that these men, escaping, had raised the hue and cry against him.

"We'll burn no more ships," said Captain Bart. "We'll parley with no more Englishmen. Kill them first, and talk to them afterwards."

So Captain Bart introduced an-

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About How
Frank Gotch
Made
Hackenschmidt
Quit

George Hackenschmidt, "the strongest man in the world," the world's champion wrestler, had hoped to make short work of his American challenger, Frank Gotch

Hackenschmidt is a wonderfully muscled man. But the unimposing Gotch is showing those muscles something new. For two hours Gotch keeps tugging, pulling, bearing down on Hack's neck. Hack is wearing down—but can Gotch stand it himself? Suddenly they go to the mat! Gotch is on top. He tries vainly to pin the Russian Lion's shoulders to the canvas.

Slammed to the floor with a wristlock, Hackenschmidt lies prostrate, but unpinned. Gotch applies his unbearable toe hold. Hackenschmidt hammers the floor with his fists in his pain.

The champion "can't take it!" He concedes the fall and refuses to come back for the second. Frank Gotch, the farm boy, is champion of the world—April 3, 1908, at Dexter Park Pavilion, Chicago, Ill.

Gotch is dead now—but he never quit. He retired as champion. His skin was so dry it cracked and his tongue was black and swollen when his grueling match with Hackenschmidt ended. Gotch could "take it!"

CAST ADRIFT BY THE HOODLUMS WHO HAVE TAKEN POSSESSION OF THE COAST GUARD BOAT, JIM SWIFT AND MARION JOYCE ARE MEMBERS OF A HELPLESS LITTLE PARTY FAR OUT AT SEA. AWE-STRIKEN WITNESSES TO A VICIOUS SEA BATTLE BETWEEN A HUGE WHALE AND MURDEROUS SHARK THEY ARE NOW SOMEWHAT RELIEVED. FOR, FINDING A RIFLE IN THE BOAT JIM SHOTS THE MAD SHARK AND STOPS THE STRUGGLE----

IT IS NOW THREE HOURS SINCE JIM STOPPED THE EXCITING FIGHT BETWEEN THE BEASTS OF THE DEEP.

WE'RE NO NEARER HELP NOW THAN WHEN WE WERE FIRST CAST ADRIFT MARION. SOMETHING HAD BETTER HAPPEN SOON.

YES--THE MEN ARE GETTING UN-EASY--I'M WORRIED JIM!

I GUESS I'D GIVE ALL THE MONEY I HAVE JUST TO SET FOOT ON GOOD FIRM GROUND AGAIN!!

AT THIS RATE WE MIGHT GO ON LIKE THIS FOR A WEEK-- AND IF A STORM EVER BLOWS UP WE'RE GONERS!!

BUT WE'RE LUCKY--THE OCEAN IS SO CALM-- I DON'T THINK I EVER SAW THE WATER SO CLEAR!

IT'S TOO CALM AND CLEAR TO SUIT ME!!

W-WHAT'S THE MATTER JIM?

SAY--LOOK-DOWN THERE!!! LOOKS LIKE A SUNKEN SHIP!! SEE THE FUNNELS--IT'S AS CLEAR AS CAN BE!!

THERE RESTING ON THE OCEAN'S FLOOR AND CLEARLY VISIBLE THROUGH THE CALM, CLEAR WATER IS A SUNKEN LINER

WHY GOOD HEAVENS!! SEE THE THREE STARS ON HER FUNNELS?? IT'S THE "EMPRESS OF INDIA"!! AND IT CARRIED MILLIONS IN GOLD BULLION WHEN IT WAS SUNK DURING THE WORLD WAR!! THEY COULD NEVER LOCATE IT!!

YEAH--THAT'S IT ALRIGHT-- IT HAD THREE STARS ON ITS FUNNELS!!

AT LAST THE HELPLESS LITTLE PARTY ARE SIGHTED BY A SOUTH-AMERICA BOUND LINER, THE SOUTHERN PRINCE

AND A SHORT TIME LATER JIM SWIFT AND MARION JOYCE ALONG WITH THE REST OF THE RESCUED PARTY ARE SAFE ABOARD THE BIG BOAT----

JIM NOW RELATES TO THE CAPTAIN THE DISCOVERY OF THE GOLD-LADEN, LONG MISSING EMPRESS OF INDIA.

GOOD HEAVENS!! ARE YOU POSITIVE IT WAS THE EMPRESS OF INDIA? WHY FORTUNES HAVE BEEN SPENT TRYING TO LOCATE HER AND THE MILLIONS SHE CARRIED

THEN I MUST HAVE THE LOCATION OF THE SPOT WHERE WE PICKED YOU UP ENTERED IN THE SHIP'S LOG--AND THAT WILL BE THE ONLY AUTHENTIC RECORD OF THE TRUE LOCATION OF THAT TREASURE!!

--AND SWIFT--I THINK IT WOULD BE BEST IF YOU INSTRUCT THE OTHER MEMBERS OF YOUR PARTY WHO KNOW OF THE GOLD SHIP'S LOCATION NOT TO MENTION IT TO ANYONE ABOARD THIS SHIP----

--BECAUSE OF THE EXCITEMENT IT MIGHT BRING-- AND SINCE YOUR PARTY DISCOVERED IT, YOU PEOPLE AND NO ONE ELSE SHOULD BENEFIT. SOME MEN WOULD STOP AT NOTHING TO LEARN YOUR SECRET-- BUT FOR THE PRESENT ANYWAY IT'S NOW SAFE AND SOUND WRITTEN HERE IN OUR SHIP'S LOG.

WELL, YOU'LL BE WITH US NOW SWIFT--TILL WE ARRIVE IN SOUTH AMERICA--SO TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF.

THANK YOU CAPTAIN--- I'LL TRY!!

HMMM--IF ONLY ONE MAN KNEW OF THE LOCATION OF THAT SUNKEN FORTUNE HE'D HAVE COMPLETE CONTROL OF IT--HE COULD

SALVAGE IT AND BE ONE OF THE RICHEST MEN IN THE WORLD. AND THE ONLY FEW PEOPLE WHO DO KNOW IT'S LOCATION ARE RIGHT HERE ON MY SHIP!!! HMMM----

IT IS THE MORNING FOLLOWING THE RESCUED PARTY'S FIRST NIGHT ABOARD THE LINER---

OH JIM-- HAVE YOU HEARD-- LAST NIGHT TWO OF THE SAILORS WHO WERE IN OUR RESCUED PARTY MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED---

THEY CAN'T BE FOUND!! AND---

WHAT??

--NOONE CAN FIND THEM ON THE BOAT THIS MORNING. THERE DOESN'T SEEM TO BE MUCH BEING DONE TO FIND THEM EITHER-- NOW, HERE'S THE FUNNY PART OF IT-- THEY WERE LAST SEEN TALKING TO A STRANGE LOOKING OLD MAN WITH DARK GLASSES AND A LONG WHITE BEARD---

YES
YES--
GO ON--

---AND NO ONE THAT I'VE SPOKEN TO RECALLS HAVING SEEN THIS OLD MAN BEFORE EITHER. SO, YOU SEE HOW MYSTERIOUS THE WHOLE THING BECOMES ANOTHER SAILOR OF OUR GROUP TALKED TO THEM FOR A WHILE AND---

--BEFORE HE LEFT HE SAYS HE NOTICED THAT THIS OLD MAN SHOWED A VERY KEEN INTEREST IN THE SUNKEN GOLD SHIP WHICH WE SAW---

HMMM--

--NOW, HOW DID HE OR ANYONE ELSE KNOW WE SAW THAT SHIP'S LOCATION? I THOUGHT IT WAS A SECRET!

YES
MARION-- SO
DID I--- THIS IS VERY FUNNY!!

I TELL YOU CAPTAIN, WE MUST LOCATE THIS OLD MAN WHO WAS SEEN TALKING TO THOSE MISSING MEN--- HE MUST BE SOMEWHERE ON THIS SHIP

HMM-- YES
OF COURSE--
YES, WE
HIM---

I'LL DO MY BEST SWIFT-- BUT IF I WERE YOU I WOULDN'T LET IT WORRY ME--- OF COURSE IF YOUR TWO MEN ARE LOST IT IS INDEED VERY UNFORTUNATE---

IT'S A SERIOUS
MATTER TO ME
CAPTAIN.

THIS CAPTAIN SEEMS ALTOGETHER TOO CALM ABOUT THIS TO SUIT ME--- I SUPPOSE IF THERE'S ANY REAL LOOKING DONE FOR THAT OLD MAN I'LL HAVE TO DO IT!!!

THAT EVENING—AS THE BIG LINER SLIPS ON THROUGH THE CURTAIN OF NIGHT FEW PASS-ENGERS STROLL THE DECKS. AND SHORTLY AFTER THE STROKE OF TEN THE DOOR OF THE CAPTAIN'S STATEROOM SLOWLY OPENS—

THE STOOPED FIGURE OF AN OLD MAN STEALTHILY EMERGES—HE QUICKLY APPRAISES THE DECK, THEN WITH A LONG STRIDE HURRIES ALONG.

JIM SWIFT AND THE SURVIVING SAILORS OF THE LITTLE PARTY HUDDLE IN A CABIN

YES FELLOWS—ALL OUR LIVES ARE IN DANGER—AND I THINK IT'S BECAUSE OF OUR KNOWLEDGE OF THE LOCATION OF THAT TREASURE SHIP!

IF WE ONLY KNEW WHO THAT MYSTERIOUS OLD MAN WAS

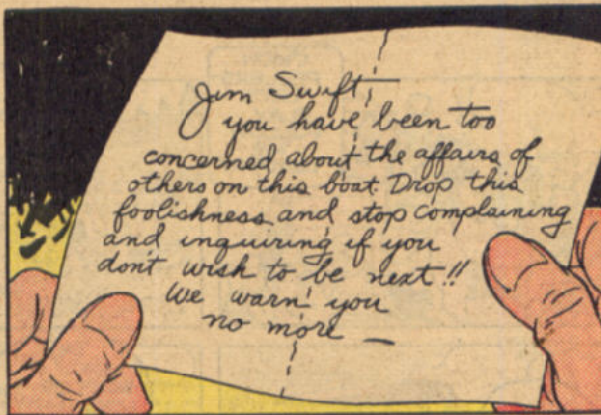

THERE IS THE CRUMPLING SOUND OF PAPER AND A SMALL ENVELOPE IS FORCED UNDER THE DOOR OF THE ROOM TO LIE UNNOTICED FOR A WHILE—THEN—

HEY FELLOWS, LOOK---THERE'S A NOTE UNDER THAT DOOR!!

HERE JIM--IT'S FOR YOU. YOUR NAME'S ON IT!!

WHAT ON EARTH CAN IT BE?

BOY--WHOEVER LEFT THAT NOTE CERTAINLY GOT AWAY IN A HURRY!!

BUT AT A SAFE DISTANCE AND WELL HIDDEN IN DEEP SHADOWS KEEN EYES PEERING FROM BEHIND THICK GLASSES WATCH JIM'S REACTION TO THE WARNING
